

Burlingame, CA. Aug 27, 2008 (BUSINESS WIRE) – Xtelesis Corporation, a leading IP communications integrator, is celebrating its second consecutive placement in Inc. Magazine's second annual Inc. 5000 List -- an honor roll of the country's 5000 fastest-growing, privately held companies in the United States. With a three-year growth of 153.5%, Xtelesis is ranked 2,405 on the list. In 2007, Xtelesis was ranked number 4,421.

"It is exciting for us to have made the list for the second year in a row. We are honored to be recognized among the ranks of so many well-known companies," said Scott Strochak, President and CEO at Xtelesis. "I'm proud of my team for continuing to prove that our solid reputation for delivering smart solutions has been successful in driving growth despite a slowing economy. This achievement would not be possible without the dedication of our team and our solution partners, as well as the customers who trust us with their business."

The team at Xtelesis designs, implements, and manages voice and data networks that support cost-effective IP-based applications. These applications include IP telephony and high definition video conferencing – both hot buttons among IT managers today. Headquartered just outside of San Francisco, Xtelesis has offices in Los Angeles, Portland, OR, and Bangalore, India.

This impressive achievement places Xtelesis among an elite group that over the years has included companies such as Cold Stone Creamery, Jamba Juice, UnderArmour, Oracle and Timberland. Many of these previously underreported companies received their first big break when publicly appearing on Inc.'s prestigious honor roll.

"Our second annual Inc. 5000 continues the most ambitious project in business journalism," said Inc. 5000 Project Manager Jim Melloan. "The Inc. 5000 gives an unrivalled portrait of young, underreported companies across all industries doing fascinating things with cutting-edge business models, as well as older companies that are still showing impressive growth."

The rankings were determined according to companies' percentage revenue growth from 2004 through 2007. Additionally, qualifying companies had to be based in the U.S., privately held, independent and have had minimum revenues of $200,000 in 2004 and $2 million in 2007. Small and large companies making this year's hot list, posted online at www.inc.com/5000, have also been praised for driving the U.S. economy even in spite of the current recession.
